FOOD WAITING
IN MARTINIQUEUNLOADING DEPENDS ON CAPITULATION
OF VICHYITE

San Juan, Puerto Rico, July 3. (P)—Food to relieve the hungry natives of Martinique and Guadeloupe rides at anchor here, only a few miles away, its unloading dependent upon the outcome of talks between Vice Admiral John H. Hoover, commandant of the 10th naval district, and Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner for the Antilles, on the future political status of French insular possessions in the West Indies.

(The wording of this dispatch suggested that Hoover already has gone to Martinique to confer with Robert.)

(From Algiers it was reliably reported that the national committee of liberation had named a member of its Washington staff as special envoy to Martinique. The envoy, whose name was given only as Hoppenot, will go to Martinique to discuss entry of the Antilles into the anti-Vichy French empire.)

Only Word Needed

Only a word from Robert is needed for the navy to give the signal for the food-laden ships to turn toward Martinique and Guadeloupe harbors to discharge vast stores of badly needed meats, rice, salt fish, and canned goods supplied by the lease-lend food distribution administration.

For months, fugitives from the Robert regime have been unanimous in describing the food conditions within the isles as desperate since the United States halted food shipments last November, and there have been reports of food riots in parts of Martinique and Guadeloupe.

At least two ships and perhaps a third were loaded in New York some time in May and arrived at San Juan last month. They stayed in San Juan harbor several days, awaiting further instructions. They now are "somewhere in the Caribbean," awaiting the outcome of the conversations between Robert and Hoover.

Crew Mutinies

Presumably, if Robert remains unyielding and clings to his past policies, this food will be diverted to some other West Indian isle, as happened with a shipment of meats and other foods three months ago.

It is known that one of two ships formerly in service between Martinique and the United States was carrying foodstuffs under the original Robert-Hoover agreement until the crew mutinied at New Orleans and refused to return to Fort-de-France as long as Robert maintained a pro-Vichy attitude. If Robert signifies a willingness to join the islands under his jurisdiction to the United Nations' cause, proclaims his allegiance to the French national committee of liberation in Algiers or steps out in favor of an Algiers-appointed governor, the foodstuffs will be unloaded within a few hours.

Holland Folks Dip
Gasoline In Ditch

Holland, Mich., July 3 (P)—A number of suburban residents of Holland and farmers living along M-44 are not going to be worried about gasoline rationing for quite some time now. Here's why. A tank truck containing 4,000 gallons of gasoline went out of control Friday, tipped over and gorged a dry ditch with the fuel.

Within a short time men and boys were on the scene with containers carrying away the precious fluid. State police and city officers arrived almost too late to impose the state law requiring red containers, but persuaded a number to paint their hoarded gas cans.

Cars At Resorts To Be Checked Today By OPA

Detroit, July 3 (P)—Over the holiday weekend, office of price administration investigators will check at resorts but they will not check cars on the road, Fred W. Lindbloom, OPA enforcement attorney for the Detroit district, said today.

Lindbloom added, however, that should any driver be stopped for a traffic violation, police will question him as to his use of gasoline. This is being done, he explained, under a standing arrangement with the state police, municipal police and sheriff's departments.

Complaints against motorists who have apparently driven further than their ration allows will be surveyed by district offices. Serious offenders may be cited.

WORK GOES ON OVER HOLIDAYNo Extra Pays Off For War Plants This
Fourth Of July

The peacetime practice of taking an extra day off when the Fourth of July comes on Sunday will be lost this year in the dust of America's highspeed war production.

Full-time working schedules over the July 3-4-5 weekend are in order for Joe the war plant worker although banks, many stores and other establishments will be closed tomorrow (Monday).

The War Production Board (WPB) said it had received promises of general adherence to Chairman Donald M. Nelson's request that war workers celebrate Independence day on Sunday only instead of carrying the holiday over into Monday.

The President and Congress also decided to continue production and forget the holiday.

Those who have time to celebrate will have little chance to do so in the traditional manner.

War restrictions on production have left few fireworks available anywhere. Gasoline restrictions will mean no longer trips for most motorists, with all pleasure driving forbidden in the east. And the Office of Defense Transportation has asked for no unnecessary travel on buses and trains.

NORTH AFRICA
BLAST SICILYAIRFIELDS IN ITALY
PULVERIZED BY LIBERATORS

BY NOLAN NORGAAARD
Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 3 (P)—The Allied assault on Italy's military air fields rose to a new peak of fury yesterday when heavy and medium American bombers from North Africa and the Middle East swung across by daylight to pulverize four important bases on Sicily and the Italian mainland.

Only a few hours earlier heavy British night bombers had poured scores of tons of high explosives and fire bombs on the battered cities of Palermo and Catania, Sicily, and Cagliari, on Sardinia.

Palermo Hit Heavily
The attack on Palermo was termed "heavy and successful," with two-ton blockbusters heading for the destruction.

In what a U. S. communique described as "a sudden intensification of the attack," nearly 100 four-engine Liberators of the Middle East command swarmed over the "hell" of Italy to drop more than 400,000 pounds of bombs on Axis airdromes at Lecce, Grottaglie and San Pancrazio—all within the aerial defense zone protecting the big Italian naval base at Taranto.

It was the highest offensive action yet staged by Liberators of the Cairo command. Three were lost as clouds of Germans and Italian fighters rose to defend their home fields, but 12 Axis planes were destroyed, paying the penalty for getting within range of the Liberators' machine-guns.

Grounded Planes Burn

Dispersal areas at all three airdromes were blanketed with fragmentation bombs, direct hits were scored on hangars and runways and bursts were seen throughout the target areas, a communique said. At Lecce bursts of smoke covered the field, indicating hits on grounded aircraft, and at least two were destroyed at Grottaglie, the announcement said. It was American precision bombing at its best.

Grottaglie is 10 miles northeast of Taranto; San Pancrazio is 23 miles east of the naval base and Lecce 42 miles to the east. Axis fighters trying to protect the bases resorted to attempts at bombing the American raiders from above, but there was no indication they were any more successful than in previous attempts.

A broadcast Italian communique acknowledged casualties and damage were caused in the Lecce and Grottaglie attacks and asserted 24 Allied planes were shot down, 12 of them four-engine bombers, in yesterday's raids on

DEATH OF NYA
AGENCY VOTEDThree Million Allowed
For Liquidation
By Congress

Washington, July 3 (P)—Congress agreed today to kill the National Youth Administration (NYA).

The decision to end the agency which was created eight years ago as a work relief organization came when the senate accepted by a 39 to 34 vote a house demand that NYA be given only $3,000,000 to finance its liquidation at the end of 1943. Originally, the senate had voted the agency $48,800,000 to continue operation for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

Senators Vandenberg and Ferguson, Michigan Republicans, both voted with the majority.

Acting in another senate-house dispute, the house agreed to a compromise which gives the Office of Price Administration (OPA) $155,000,000 and the Office of War Information (OWI) domestic branch $2,750,000.

The funds for OPA were $22,000,000 less than the amount passed by the senate, but $25,000,000 higher than the previous house figure. The compromise on OWI's allotment constituted a reduction of $11,000 from the senate approved grant for that agency's domestic branch. The house had proposed to strip OWI of all funds for its domestic branch. All in all, the OWI's appropriation for foreign and domestic work under the compromise amounted to $23,155,293. The money for OWI and OPA is contained in the $2,190,000,000 war agencies bill.

Cheap Jokes Can't Hide Axis Jitters

BY RUSSELL LANDSTROM
London, July 3. (P)—Ponderous attempts at levity by Paul Joseph Goebbels' propaganda machine today could not quite conceal the misgivings within Nazi Europe as the second date set by the Germans for an allied invasion passed with scarcely more than the usual flow of reports from belligerent and neutral capitals.

Stories of spreading uneasiness within Hitler's fortress kept coming. Stockholm newspaper reports asserted that Reichsmarshal Herman Goering was "very ill," having suffered a "nervous breakdown with serious heart trouble after taking a cure."

Guess Goes Wrong
The reports said two specialists and Goering's wife were at his side almost uninterruptedly and that only intimates were permitted to see the air chief.

GIRAUD ENROUTE TO WASHINGTONDispatch Says General
Has Passed Through
Natal Air Base

Rio De Janeiro, July 3. (P)—General Henri Giraud has passed through Natal enroute to the United States, an O Globo dispatch from there said tonight.

The co-president of the French committee of National Liberation is on his way to visit Washington in response to an invitation from President Roosevelt.

Natal is an air base on the South Atlantic route between the United States and Africa.

While there was no official word as to such a plan, it is possible that Giraud may take the opportunity either on his way to Washington or later to stop at Martinique, big French island in the Caribbean.

Until lately, Martinique has held aloof from the United Nations but the navy announced yesterday that Vice Admiral John Howard Hoover would confer with Admiral Georges Robert, high commissioner of the colony, on its status.

The French communique of national liberation in Algiers, noting what it called "a more hopeful tone" in recent statements by Robert, decided today to send a delegate there in an effort to bring its people over the United French empire.

In a 3 to 2 opinion the court held unconstitutional acts of the 1943 legislature repealing half-century old laws levying the tax, providing for its collection, and prescribing how evidence of payment must be presented by voters.

The court took no action on another act of the last legislature, setting up a permanent system for registration of voters. This act was automatically voided since it became effective only when there was no poll tax requirement for voting.

The majority opinion of the court was written by Justice Alexander W. Chambers of Chattanooga and a brief dissenting opinion was written by Chief Justice Grafton Green, on behalf of himself and Justice A. B. Neil.

Bees Take Over
Raisins In Wreck

Holland, Mich., July 3 (P)—In a freight train wreck in the switchyards of the Pere Marquette railroad several days ago two carloads of raisins were badly damaged, boxes broke open and their contents widely scattered. Salvaging helped but apparently not too much, for since then, stimulated by the hot, dry weather, swarms of bees have taken over the unfinished business, much to the dismay and comfort of railroad employees and neighboring families. City officials have been appealed to control the situation.

MAJOR CLASH IMPENDING IN SOUTH PACIFICNIPPONESE ATTEMPT TO SHELL VITAL
RENDOVA BASE

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington, July 3. (P)—American warships lying in wait pounced on a Japanese force which tried to shell Rendova Island last night, the navy disclosed today, and drove off the attackers with heavy gunfire.

This fight, started by three enemy light cruisers and four destroyers, probably is but the first of a series of brushes between American and Japanese sea squadrons which may culminate in a major sea battle if the Japanese throw more and more units into their efforts to stem the allied South Pacific offensive.

Munda Next Goal

Air and land fighting continued, meantime, with army and marine forces on the Solomons front driving steadily toward the enemy's Munda air base, and American and Australian forces in northeast New Guinea tightening their ring of positions around the strategic air field at Salamaua.

Like Salamaua, Munda is subject to attack from at least two sides—by army groups in Rendova Island and by marines pressing up from the south of N. W. Georgia Island where they already have captured Viru harbor. The attack by warships seemingly was an attempt on the enemy's part to harass and delay the Rendova phase of the operation.

The Japanese thus were trying to accomplish with naval vessels under the cover of darkness what they had failed entirely to do by heavy air attack on the day the army landed on Rendova. At that time they lost 191 planes of a force estimated at more than 110. What damage they may have suffered in the sea skirmish was not reported here.

Air Power Weakens

(Possibly indicating that the drain on Japanese air power is raising difficult problems for the enemy was a report from Major General Clair L. Chennault, commanding American air forces in China, that Japanese planes made no raids on unoccupied China in the week of June 23-30. Chennault commented, "It is quite possible the Japs don't want to lose any more planes in China for a while because they are so badly needed elsewhere.")

The sea action was reminiscent of that which marked the first hours of the American invasion of Guadalcanal and its indicated outcome suggested that not again would allied commanders be caught in the South Pacific as they were at that time. Immediately after American troops had landed on Guadalcanal, a light Japanese force, probably of about the same composition as that thrown at Rendova Island, made a surprise attack from behind Savo Island and destroyed three American and one Australian cruisers.

Tables Turned

Subsequently the South Pacific commander, Rear Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, was replaced by Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., president of the offensive under the general direction of General Douglas MacArthur, who is personally commanding the New Guinea

RANCHERS HUNT
FOR MURDERERSThree Motiveless Killings
Infuriate Residents
Of Laramie, Wyo.

Laramie, Wyo., July 3. (P)—Infuriated ranchers sent their families to havens in Laramie to hunt and joined law officers in a hunt for the perpetrator of three seemingly motiveless murders in the Wyoming ranchlands.

Forcy Gut, respected and prosperous ranchman, and his school-teacher wife, were found shot to death today near their Dale Creek ranch home.

Sheriff Ed A. Wood of Laramie said the killer apparently was the same man who shot to death Matt Katmo, 44, Cheyenne war worker, in a mountain campground on Wednesday. No motive was discovered in either case.

Katmo was killed and his companion, Mrs. O. W. Larson of Laramie, was beaten and her hands tied by an unidentified man who accosted them as they stopped out of Katmo's car to pick some flowers.

Sheriff Wood led one group of armed Laramie residents and ranchmen into the Dale Creek area, wooded, rocky, and crisscrossed by deep gullies, and Sheriff Norbert Tuck of Cheyenne led another. A private plane circled over the area.

"This case isn't going to cost the state anything if we catch it with that crazy killer," Sheriff Tuck remarked.

BATTLE LOOMS OVER SUBSIDIES

Amendments To Restrict Credit Corporation Are Proposed

Washington, July 3, (AP)—Authority for payment of up to $25,000,000 in subsidies between now and Jan. 1 was recommended by the senate banking committee today after a three-hour closed session with war mobilization director Byrnes and other high administration officials.

The authority would be extended—and limited to a house-approved amendment to the life of the commodity credit corporation for six months and increasing its borrowing power from $2,500,000,000 to an even $3,000,000,000.

The house approved the CCC extension, after sustaining President Roosevelt's veto of an earlier measure which attempted to place a drastic ban on subsidy payments intended to roll back the price of food.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), sponsor of the amendment limiting subsidy payments for the balance of the year to the $25,000,000 total, pointed out that the language of the provision did not restrict roll-back payments which have been made to processors under the administration's subsidy plan reducing butter and meat prices.

Guarantee Sought For Logger Wages

Washington, July 3 (AP)—A proposal to provide a guaranteed weekly wage to lumber workers, partly through a federal subsidy, to overcome an acute manpower shortage, is under study by three government agencies.

In Speaker, the mythical District of Columbia figure who represents authentic sources who will not be quoted by name, declared today that, if adopted, the proposal will be a wartime innovation.

In another manpower development, Speaker said, the growing need of civilian industry for specialists, especially engineers, has brought a concession from the army.

Responding to an appeal by the manpower commission, the army has agreed to release to civilian industry ten percent of the approximately 130,000 students in the army specialized training program. The men to be released, all of them engineers, will not be selected until they have completed their courses.

Secretary Harry Pollitt, giving an accounting to the 16th congress of the party, said: "A position now exists in which, with the full exploitation and speedy organization of a second front in Europe, the danger of a prolonged war can be averted."

He asserted that Great Britain and the United States could send between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 men on an invasion of the continent and could far outstrip the axis in production of tanks, planes and guns.

the mainland and in Sardinia and Sicily.

Mitchell medium bombers of the North African air force also ran into furious resistance in their daylight attack on the Castelvetro field in Sicily, the results of which were obscured by a ground haze. More than 20 German fighters tore into the attacking formation, and in the course of the ensuing battle, Lieut. Charles B. Hall of Brazil, Ind., gained the distinction of being the first American negro pilot to destroy an enemy plane in combat.

Hall, flying a P-40 Warhawk in the squadron escorting the Mitchells, got a German Focke-Wulf-190 between his sights and sent him crashing. Upon returning to his base he was personally congratulated by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Allied commander-in-chief, who made a 1,500-mile tour of Allied air fields during the war.

In addition to Hall's victory, the Warhawks probably destroyed a Messerschmitt-109 and damaged another. Allied planes returned safely, both from this operation and from the raid by British Wellington bombers on Palermo and Cagliari the preceding night.

Culberson's contributions formed the major share of a 12-hit barrage laid down by the Red Sox, although most of the damage was done in a seven-run ninth inning uprising.

Norfolk, Neb., July 3 (AP)—This town's link with the glamorous days of the wild west has been broken.

Dr. Richard Tanner, 74, known as "Diamond Dick" to thousands who saw his amazing feats of marksmanship at wild west circus performances before the turn of the century, died last night.

He had kept his identity a well-hidden secret for 15 years after he quit the circus show ring to become a country doctor in north-east Nebraska.

He was quick to point out that he wasn't a wild west hero as portrayed in the "Diamond Dick" stories that were so popular with youngsters some years back.

But his colorful career as a wild west performer started when he was a youth of 16. Extremely proficient with rifle and pistol, he was attracted to wild west circuses, and his skill soon placed him among the ranking performers.

When he was in his early twenties he saddled a horse at Lincoln, Neb., and rode it to New York and back. He claimed it was the longest horseback ride on record—5,500 miles—without a change of horses.

In 1905 he decided to become a doctor. Four years later he was graduated from the old Lincoln Medical college at Lincoln, Neb. In 1910 he began his practice at Norfolk.

Senators Push Near Top Spot

St. Louis, July 3 (AP)—Home runs by Stan Spence and Bob Johnson coupled with a walk, a wild pitch and a single enabled the Washington Senators to beat the St. Louis Browns 6 to 4 tonight and move into a virtual first-place tie with the New York Yankees, now only three percentage points ahead.

The Browns grabbed the lead in the first inning on Chet Laabs' sixth home run of the season with two men on base. But Washington's eighth-inning uprising started by Spence and Johnson drove Nelson Potter off the mound and Archie McKain, his successor, yielded another run before the side was retired.

McKain walked Mickey Vernon, who moved to second on a wild pitch and on a grounder down the first base line when to third from where he scored on Gerald Priddy's single.

The Senators used three pitchers. Rae Scarborough walked three men to load the bases in the third and was replaced by Ewald Pyle. Milton Haefner went in at the start of the seventh to hold the Browns hitless for the remaining three innings and get credit for the win.

The game raised the Senators into top place just three percentage points behind the Yankees, who dropped a twin bill in Detroit.

In this case, Halsey and his commanders in the Rendova area apparently disposed their forces so that the surprised party was the Jap rather than themselves.

Preceding the Saturday night (Solomon time) attack, the navy communiqué said, the Japanese sent over a force of bombers on Friday afternoon with Zero fighter escort and attacked United States positions on Rendova but caused only "negligible" damage. There was no explanation as to why these planes were not intercepted or engaged by the fighter forces which had overwhelmed the enemy's initial attacks the day the offensive began.

Giving latest information on the results of those initial attacks, the navy said that new reports disclosed that several crew members of the transport McCawley were killed when the ship was torpedoed by Japanese planes. Previously, it was reported that there had been no loss of life. The McCawley was the only ship sunk and she received her mortal blow from a Japanese submarine after being first damaged by the planes.

Somewhere in New Guinea, July 2, (Delayed), (AP)—Australian jungle fighters and American invasion forces which landed at Nassau bay last Wednesday were cleaning up their forward positions today within sight of the big enemy base at Salamaua, about 12 miles distant.

The Australians, who drove from the inland Mubo area, and the Americans joined forces today, completing the first phase of the New Guinea offensive operations.

After pushing eastward toward the coast while under Japanese artillery fire, the Australians gained positions on ridges near the Francisco river and could see the Salamaua air base. They encountered some Japanese below the native village of Duali and dispersed them so quickly that they were unable to regain contact.

There was no official explanation of the immediate objective in the Nassau bay area. Any push northward toward Salamaua would be almost impossible because of the tangled jungle and swamps. The action appeared to be a diversionary maneuver to occupy enemy planes and troops from the Salamaua sector.

Such a diversion would aid United States forces in the New Georgia group of the Solomon Islands, the other prong of the powerful offensive action.

The allied forces control the Mubo-Duali track for its full length of more than nine miles on an east to west axis and a thorough cleaning out of the area was expected.

Further north the Australian Indian-style fighters were harrying Japanese forces based at Lae, near Salamaua. These raiders have clashed with several Japanese patrols with comparatively heavy cost to the enemy.

If the Nassau bay action was intended as a diversionary move it brought some results. Ten Japanese planes raided the area during the day. Meantime allied medium bombers attacked nearby enemy installations at Kela point, causing explosions and silencing anti-aircraft positions.

PALERMO USELESS

New York, July 3, (AP)—Rome radio admitted tonight that the Sicilian air and naval base of Palermo has "ceased to exist" because of the pounding of allied air attacks. The broadcast, recorded by NBC, said Palermo had been struck by "many times more bombs than can be counted" and is now useless.

Celluloid Collars Were All The Rage In '70's

—BY JOHN P. NORTON

Snappy dressers of the present generation probably never heard of a "celluloid" collar, but there was a time when no well-groomed gentleman would consider appearing in public without that stiff adornment about his neck. They held the advantage over the ordinary, unattached, linen collar of earlier years, in that they could be wiped off with a bit of cold water and a rag and worn almost interminably. It is true that pipe smokers, who affected this bit of neckwear, were forced to exercise constant caution because a spark from pipe or match would set off celluloid explosion that always proved most painful to careless wearers of this type of masculine adornment.

Introduced in 1879
When celluloid collars were first introduced in Escanaba, in 1879 the Iron Port said: "Ephraim has just received a stock of these new articles, the Celluloid collars and cuffs, which are practically indestructible by wear and which are always in order. Five minutes work with cold water and soap restores their pristine purity, when they have become soiled by wearing and every washing improves their appearance. Call and see them; buy a set and declare your independence of laundresses."

The late Edward Erickson, who was engaged in business on Ludington street for more than a half-century before his death and who erected the building now occupied by Lauer's, first entered business in Escanaba with Louis Cardozo in 1878, under the firm name of Cardozo & Erickson. Their establishment was known as the "Boss" store, later taken over by Mr. Erickson and conducted under his management until his retirement, a few years before his death.

When this firm opened up their winter stock in the fall of 1879, the Iron Port said: "We ran before we were sent last week, in announcing the arrival of Cardozo & Erickson's new goods. They are here now though, having been received on the Menominee on Thursday and a bulky big stock it is too, of almost everything wanted for fall and winter wear; for protection or adornment; for man or woman, youth or age, rich or poor. These goods have been well bought, which, as everyone knows, is half sold, so their customers will have only half the trouble to be suited which would be experienced at any other place."

In the same issue the Iron Port mentions another pioneer Escanaba firm, whose name was prominently identified with Escanaba's early mercantile history. Louis Schram, grand-father of "Dick" Schram and father of Isaac Schram, first engaged in business here under the firm name of Heller & Schram, in the middle seventies and by the close of that decade conducted the business as an individual enterprise.

Bought for Entire Season
In those early years, it was the custom of all merchants to buy all of their goods for each season at one time, in marked contrast to the constant buying now engaged in by merchandizers of the nation. Because Escanaba was not of easy access in the winter seasons Escanaba's early merchants usually bought their goods in large quantities during the seasons of navigation and enjoyed the benefits of lower transportation costs. Each spring and fall great packing cases, containing goods of every kind, lined the sidewalks in front of Escanaba stores, as owners and clerks undertook the job of unpacking and arranging displays on the store shelving. And buyers of Escanaba looked forward to these semi-annual deliveries of goods, fresh from the outside, for travel was greatly restricted in those times and the number of Escanaba residents who could afford to go "outside" to do their own buying, was restricted to a very select few.

When Louis Schram was installing his fall stock for 1879, the Port said: "Louis Schram has now in and nearly arranged the largest and best selected stock of dry goods, clothing and boots and shoes ever brought to Escanaba and is ready to receive all of his old customers and as many new ones as will favor him with a call. He would especially call the attention of his friends to his full line of Selz, hand made boots and shoes, for men and boys, ladies and misses and children. These goods are all warranted and are unexcelled by any goods in any market."

Greenhoot Store Built
It was also in the fall of '79 that Greenhoot's new store building, still standing on lower Ludington street, was beginning to take form. It was considered by far the most pretentious business building in Escanaba at the time and the Port frequently referred to progress made on the structure. In September of that year the Port said: "Greenhoot's new building begins to show what it will be like. The stone for the front is on the ground and partly in position, and the store will be ready for occupancy within 30 days. It will be, beyond question, the finest building yet erected in the place and will reflect credit on all concerned in its erection—upon the architect, T. H. Green, of Fond du Lac, who is not unknown to our people, having put up the Semer building; Mr. A. W. Martin, of the same place, master mason and Fred Harris, of Escanaba, master carpenter."

At the same time Atkins, McNaughton & Company were announcing that they would, in the future, receive "on Tuesday and Thursday of each week a supply of Booth's famous Oval brand oysters, both in bulk and in cans" and Winegar, Millar & Company, announced that they had for sale a large supply of "first quality hardwood, from St. Martin's island, cut last winter, at the Goodrich dock."

Other local firms advertising wares and service in the Iron Port of that time were: John Semer, grocer; J. N. Mead, druggist; F. L. Pool, "Cabin Ointment" gardens; Hiller's furniture; John K. Stack, liquor dealer; E. G. Dixon hardware; John Gross, groceries; W. J. Wallace hardware and building supplies; C. A. Cram, meat market; Charles Mosier, house

Missing In Action

Tech. Sgt. John K. Sullivan, 21, son of Mrs. John A. Sullivan, 312 S. 14th street, is reported missing in action in a telegram received yesterday morning by Mrs. Sullivan from the war department.

The telegram which Mrs. Sullivan received yesterday morning followed by less than a day a letter that she received from her son announcing his safe arrival in England.

The telegram follows: "I regret to inform you that the commanding general of the European area reports your son Tech. Sgt. John K. Sullivan missing in action since June 25. If further details or other information of his status are received, you will be promptly notified." The telegram was signed by the adjutant general.

Sgt. Sullivan was a first engineer on a Flying Fortress. He went overseas May 24, making the trip by plane.

It is presumed that Sgt. Sullivan participated in a bombing raid painting; Hart & Williams, wagon shop; Conrad Lins, boots and shoes; John Peck, merchant tailor; J. N. Hiller, grocer; C. C. Royce, druggist and bookseller; F. D. Clark, harness and saddles; N. Ludington Company, lumber; Bittner Brothers, meat market; Escanaba bank, J. F. Oliver, cashier; Louis Stegmiller, watch maker and jeweler and Frank Murray, announced the complete refitting of his saloon and restaurant, at 52 Ludington street.

Technical Sergeant John K. Sullivan, 21, son of Mrs. John A. Sullivan, 312 S. 14th street, is reported missing in action in a telegram received yesterday morning by Mrs. Sullivan from the war department.

The telegram which Mrs. Sullivan received yesterday morning followed by less than a day a letter that she received from her son announcing his safe arrival in England.

on the industrial Ruhr valley of Germany on June 25. The Associated Press reported a heavy American raid on the Ruhr valley on that date, with the loss of six American Fortresses. Presumably Sullivan was aboard one of the planes that failed to return from that mission.

Inasmuch as the telegram indicated only that Sgt. Sullivan is missing in action, hope is retained that he landed without mishap and that he may have become a prisoner of war. In this case, it would probably be some time before the war department is notified.

Sgt. Sullivan was born in Escanaba March 20, 1922 and was graduated from the Escanaba high school in 1940. He enlisted in the U. S. Army Air Corps in September, 1940, after serving in the national guard here. He received his training at Chanute Field, Ill.; Sheppard Field, Tex.; and the Las Vegas, Nev., aerial gunnery school.

Before entering the air corps, Sullivan was an air student of Walter Arntzen, who is now in the ferry command.

Sgt. Sullivan received his silver wings at Las Vegas, Nevada, in September, 1942.

This is the Fourth of July; anniversary of the fulfillment of this nation's independence. This nation, dedicated from its first cry of life, to liberty! It is impossible for us to observe that date, this year, without realizing how we once again are embattled in the same cause—now on a global scale, that all the men, women and children of the world might henceforth also live free to worship and speak as they see fit... free from fear... free from want. We who work and fight under the Stars and Stripes have by our side, under their own brave banners, those other United Nations with whom we proclaim: "United We Are Strong, United We Will Win." And as the Fourth of July signals the independence of these United States, may some future date signal the independence of mankind everywhere, freed from the despotic tyranny of the enemy...

One Big Drive

NATIONWIDE plans are now being perfected to combine all war aid agencies of this county, outside of the American Red Cross, in a single organization, to supply necessary funds for all war purposes in a single, national fund raising campaign. Among the agencies to be served by United War Fund Inc. are: U.S.O., United China Relief, Greek War Relief, Polish War Relief, Russian War Relief, United Yugoslav Relief, French War Relief, European Children and other similar organizations, designed for service to our fighting forces and the relief of civilian populations among the Allied Nations. Funds to finance the work of these several organizations will be raised in a nationwide campaign, to be staged this fall. The American Red Cross by the by-laws of that organization and by direction of President Roosevelt, is not permitted to join in a fund raising campaign with any other organization.

Governor Harry F. Kelly, is honorary president of the Michigan organization, while Howard C. Lawrence, of Grand Rapids, widely known Michigan banker and former secretary of state for Michigan, is president of Michigan United War Fund Inc. Harry D. Brackett, present head of the USO organization in Delta county, will likely remain as head of the Delta county committee.

In effect the movement will eliminate the necessity for a multiplicity of "drives", for various purposes, for the duration of the war and will concentrate in one big campaign the multiplicity of drives that have, to this time, been scattered through the year.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, of New York, president of the national organization has outlined the purpose and objectives of United War Fund Inc. as follows:

The National War Fund originated locally, out of the clearly expressed demands of the people for unified, inclusive local campaigns; it was given national impetus and whole-hearted approval by the President's War Relief Control Board, by the obvious necessity for conserving manpower, and the urgent need for unity and singleness of purpose in time of war.

Its purpose is to raise and distribute adequate funds to meet the reasonable requirements of all approved war-related appeals through coordinated local campaigns. This will be done jointly with local agencies wherever possible, by stimulating united campaigns in all sections of the country and by working with existing local fund-raising organizations such as community chests and war funds.

Thus, for the first time, people throughout the country will have the opportunity to contribute to all relief and service organizations in one campaign, except the American Red Cross. Those who have engaged in the separate fund-raising activities of these organizations locally will have the opportunity to pool their leadership and resources in the joint enterprise.

Generally, the new National War Fund meets a need which has been realized throughout the country by the hundreds of thousands of volunteer workers who give their time and their money to support these appeals. It will eliminate the confusion in the minds of contributors who in the past have been faced with incessant and innumerable demands upon their generosity. It will also preserve the advantages of volunteer efforts and local initiative, wisely directed in the interests of worthy causes.

Vacationing in the U. P.

WITH touring at pretty much of a standstill in the Upper Peninsula, and the northern part of the Lower Peninsula reported "like a graveyard" as far as reporters are concerned, it still may not be out of place to call attention to an outing place near Escanaba which fulfills every possible angle of a delightful forest vacation.

The U. S. Forest Service has announced that the Clear Lake camp nine miles south of Shingleton will be in commission during July, and that three large organizations, one of which is from Escanaba, will occupy the grounds and buildings throughout the month.

If Clear Lake and its wonderful camp were in Maine or northern New York, their outstanding attractions would be publicized and patronized to the limit. Nothing like this outing place—and its twin at Sidnaw in the Ottawa national forest—have ever been seen in the north country. Equipment, lake, surroundings, services, are all exceptional. Every one who has once visited these enchanted spots wants to go again.

The Forest Service has not built and furnished these locations with the thought of making money out of them. They are operated not for profit, but with the idea of giving larger groups a chance at super-outings without heavy cost. It is said that well managed commissary departments brought those attending at Clear Lake last year through with all expenses paid, at less than ten dollars a week per individual. It's a glorious vacation spot for those who can get there, and the cost is ridiculously low. Too bad that more people cannot enjoy these beauty spots this year.

A Post-War Project

THOSE who are in the know say that the Mackinac Straits bridge project will come to life with a bang when the war is over. It probably will lead the list of work propositions in Michigan when the State is casting about for reconstruction enterprises in the slack times which are likely to follow the war.

There isn't any particular need for a bridge at this time. Only two ferries have been operating at the Straits, and when one of them suffered an accident recently, the other ship was able to take care of the traffic without difficulty. Travel has reached so low an ebb as to be almost negligible, and a bridge would be a superfluous under present conditions.

In peace times, however, it is reasonable to expect that peoples' thoughts will turn again to the cool Land of Hiawatha, and there will be a summer rush for the north country. There will be a revival of Straits bridge talk, and if no better relief projects can be found, there will be a demand for the structure's completion. Provided, of course, that airplane developments do not reach a point by that time which will make bridges unnecessary.

Isolationism Losing Out

ANOTHER boost for America's participation in postwar plans to achieve world cooperation was given last week when Senators Vandenberg and White, Republicans of Michigan and Maine, respectively, served notice they would demand a vote next fall on the Ball-Burton-Hull-Hatch resolution.

This resolution, which calls for a program to preserve postwar peace, by force if necessary, failed to obtain the approval of the senate when introduced some weeks ago. In the lower house, however, the Fulbright resolution, which has similar objectives, was passed by a heavy majority.

Many senators and representatives, classed as non-interventionists and isolationists before Pearl Harbor, have joined those who contend that America must assume her responsibilities with other nations in working for peace and a better world. They realize now that isolationism offers no guarantee against our involvement in war in this rapidly shrinking world.

ADVENTURE STORIES OF '43

(Christian Science Monitor)
Fact is stranger than fiction—and these days more exciting. Adventure is not confined to novels. Heroes are not mere shadows of the imagination who live in books. They're honest-to-goodness people: the boy who worked in the chain store, the youngster who drove the delivery truck, the fellow who lived across the way.

The setting of the new "thriller" may be the South Pacific, high in the air over Japanese-held Rabaul in New Britain, over Sicily and Sardinia in the Mediterranean, over Burma. Or it may be a mystery story of submarine operations far down under the South Seas.

It is told in newspaper columns, in magazines, in books, and in the infrequent installments of censored letters. It is a new type of reading for many people, and it is having a salutary effect. Maps of the world are dusted off and scrutinized. The atlas has come to be the common handbook of many who used to think it was only for school rooms and libraries.

Americans are reaching out to new horizons. They're thinking to some extent, in international dimensions.

It is an encouraging trend, but it would be a mistake to take it for granted that the broader view is necessarily a permanent one. It is definitely, however, a basis for something better—the foundation upon which a more informed public opinion may be built.

SUNDAY HODGE PODGE

San Francisco: What authority is there for radio's three-syllable pronunciation of EVENING and BUSINESS?—V. P.

Answer: The nouns evening and business are not three-syllable words. The correct pronunciations are:

EEV-ning
BIZ-ness

But the verb evening (to make even) has three syllables, thus: EE-ven-ing
Kingsport: Please pronounce the word ERA.—J. B. E.

Answer: Not "AIR-uh." Say EE-rah
Long Beach: I'd like to see the phrase "piece de resistance," but I'm afraid to risk it. Can do?—J. P. H.

Answer: Can do. It means "the main dish of a meal; the chief attraction." "Piece" is similar to the word "yes" with the sound of "p" before it. In "resistance," the accent falls on the third syllable, which has the French nasal sound. Say: p'yess duh ray-zess-TAH(N)SS

Dayton: Please pronounce "homogenize" for us.—Mrs. de H.

Answer: Not "hoe-MAH-jen-ize." Accent the first syllable, thus: MOE-moe-jen-ize

Ann Arbor: "Is 'ornery' a good word?"—C. B.

Answer: It is an expressive but corrupted form of "ordinary." It should not be used in serious speech or writing.

Indianapolis: Why do some broadcasters sound a long "o" in "Progress"?—A.

Fair Enough

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Pals, I am taking off the whiskers because I wouldn't fool you any more about this guess of where a fellow stands if he isn't doing essential war work. I don't know and I doubt that Paul McNutt knows, himself. Paul has his duties and powers, Jimmy Byrnes has a piece of it and the President has some vague, but apparently mighty special authority derived from some act of Congress but, recognizing all this, where are we at, anyway?

Last winter McNutt issued a list of occupations including that of lavatory man in a night club, which were held to be non-essential, the idea being that all persons so employed had better go into war work or the armed forces. There were several fast developments between September of last year and last March, which went by so quickly that nobody could analyze them, compare them to the laws as they are popularly understood and relate them to each other. I am reminded of my own confusion in trying to score the assists in those run-down plays between third and home in World series games when I was young and gay, or some of those Pop Warner sleight-of-hand jobs in which everyone including the Dean, the janitor and the old man, himself, seemed to handle the ball. Then it sailed out of the mob and plopped for another touchdown into the arms of an end or back, who, under cover of the confusion, had planted himself in the end zone.

—LITTLE MORE SERIOUS—

In the rundowns, sometimes the whole ball club would get implicated in the put-out, and our simple little task was to record, infallibly for the historical record, just who had handled the ball and in just what order. We were supposed to do about the same on those Warner things, but either I was the dumbest one or the only honest one in the press coop because those jams were always who-dunnits to me, and I would settle on my own arbitrary version and stick to it.

But this is a little more serious, although I must admit that the reading public was pretty grim about its news of the tremendous trivialities of sport and sent me plenty of "Dear Sir, you cur" letters challenging my misrepresentation of lightning incidents which individuals had seen distinctly otherwise with their own eyes. This is heavy business. People want to know where they stand and how come, and yet it seems that nobody does because it is all done impromptu like a pin-show in the attic on a rainy day, and there seems to be no effort to make it make sense but just an intent to bull it through by bluff and threat.

They say, all right, you get out of your non-essential job and get into, say, a factory, but then some louse stands at the factory gate, with old Sam standing back of him, who tells you to get up as many bucks as he takes it into his head to demand of you and submit to a private system of government complete with fines and you appeal to Sam to give him a little push to one side, and Sam calls you a slacker. He doesn't say yes or no about the proposition but lets him get away with the stickup just the same.

—TOO MANY FOOLISH ORDERS—

You want to put up a scrap for a show-down decision but you figure that, after all, why should you be the patsy for the whole lot of men in your status and maybe get pushed, anyway, so you decide to skip it and pay the gorilla, and when you get home at night you read in the paper that this ape, who may have a prison record or maybe wasted X-million man hours of absolutely vital production of shooting weapons with a Communist strike, has been deferred by the same draft board that is threatening to put the snatch on you, on the ground that in shaking you down for random to keep you out of uniform, he is performing essential war duties.

There have been so many of these off-the-end-of-the-tongue orders and directives that I, who am supposed to make a business of remembering and understanding them, can't even remember how many there were. I don't know the extent of the President's special powers for the period of the war emergency or what authority McNutt and Byrnes possess or whether they got it from Congress on a forward pass from the President or whether he had any real, legal right to take the position that small, private business such as a cigar store is a legitimate casualty of the war. And I am not just wool-gathering or clowning, either, for I have had long, earnest talks with the high men involved in this confusion in Washington and still don't know very clearly what is what.

Undoubtedly there is need for a certain degree of quick, arbitrary authority in government in this war, because there isn't time to run to Congress for a law every time the quartermaster needs a can of beans or some individual with the disposition of a guard-house lawyer wants to see the letter of the law covering some minute problem of his own.

But here we are wasting men by the thousand in slow-down and fake-work systems and strikes, and there is McNutt hollering for men and threatening people who are still setting pins in bowling alleys instead of riveting planes or jeeps, and you can read the Selective Service Act and find nothing in there about such alternatives and if you ask your lawyer or your congressman just how about it and under what law, you get no answer for an answer.

N. Answer: "Proe," to rhyme with toe, hoe, is a Briticism, American dictionaries prefer: PROG-ress. Also use the short "o" in process and propaganda, as: PROSS-ess and PROP-uh-GAN-duh

NEXT!

Good Morning!

By The Bugler

FOURTH OF JULY—Today is the Fourth of July, anniversary marking the birthday of American independence. It will be observed quietly—

Dunathan

—or not at all. America is fighting the grimmest war in its history. There is neither the time nor the inclination to arrange, stage and attend "an old-fashioned Fourth". And so in retrospect we'll celebrate "the Fourth"—be-cause that will not only be more enjoyable but it will take nothing from the war effort. Only those who are old enough to remember "an old-fashioned Fourth" can understand and appreciate the hectic excitement of that day in every American community. Those who can remember the smell of burning "punk" (from which firecrackers were lighted), the sound of the village band tooting stoutly from the bandstand in the park, and the whinny of horses frightened by the toot of "one of them new-fangled automobiles" will never forget to high excitement and anticipation that gripped them the day before the celebration.

For a week or more before the morning of July Fourth the kids had been laying in a supply of firecrackers and fireworks. There were plenty of them to be had. The little store near the court house had certain kinds of pin-wheels and sparklers that you couldn't find any place else in town—but one of the bigger stores downtown came out one year with a flare that burned a bright blue light. It was all the rage that year.

Even the men of the family could not restrain themselves and bought firecrackers and fireworks—although they kept the big pieces as a surprise for the kids, to be set off at odd moments when the noise an excitement started to die down.

EVERYBODY GOT UP early the morning of July Fourth. You couldn't have slept late if you wanted to. The still hush of an early summer morning was broken by the sudden explosion of a firecracker. It rocked the ear drums of those who were still sleeping, bounced children out of their beds and hastily into their clothes, silenced the birds that had been trilling a welcome to the new day.

All up and down the street the boys and girls came rushing out of the houses, screaming and shouting and tossing firecrackers right and left. It was deafening, exciting, dangerous. Old Man Smith always came out purposefully at that hour with his double-barreled 12 gauge shotgun and fired both barrels at once. It made a loud and encouraging report—promise of more noise to come.

Breakfast was a sketchy affair for the children, intent on getting out as fast as possible. There were still great mounds of firecrackers to be shot off. The supply seemed inexhaustible. Picnic lunches were packed by the women and father hitched up the horses to the carryall—or if you were lucky and were a member of a family on which fortune had smiled, he cranked the car and got it backed out of the stable.

AT SOUTH PARK the morning was bright. By this time you had burned holes in your best sailor suit with the smoldering stick of punk. The supply of firecrackers you had thought would never decrease was already alarmingly low. You began to pick them over, putting strings of the little ones and a lot of big "cañon crackers" aside for special purposes.

20 Years Ago—1923

Shelby, Montana—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, was awarded a 15-round decision over Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul challenger, in one of the most surprising upsets in a heavyweight match in years.

Manistiquette—Mrs. Julius Petersen, who left recently for Chicago, was honored at a farewell party by about thirty members of the congregation of the Norwegian Church aid at the Emil Anderson home.

25 Years Ago—1918

Michael B. Jensen of Escanaba, now in service at Jacksonville, Fla., has been promoted to the rank of first lieutenant. Escanaba's Fourth of July celebration this year will be a gigantic patriotic demonstration. Parades, patriotic addresses, band music and other features are scheduled.

But with what you and the others could spare there was little decrease in the total noise.

Picnic lunches were eaten at the tables under the oak trees. The stuffed family watched the baseball game with sleepy interest. Later in the afternoon the whole family went home.

It was then the boys began to think up new and more ingenious ways of touching off explosives. Cannon crackers were placed under tin cans, were set off in hot-ties. The careening tin and the flying glass cut faces and hands. And then you got into a contest to see who could hold a firecracker the longest, tossing them away just before they exploded. Little Skinny Gross held one too long and the sight of his bloody fingers, flesh torn to the bone, added a thrill of horror to an excitingly pleasant afternoon.

IN THE EVENING there came a slight hush as supper was eaten and the family gathered their resources for the hours ahead. Although it was not yet dark some of the kids were lighting pin-wheels and sparklers, burning their fingers on the hot iron whirling them around and around their heads. In the later darkness two sparklers, one in each hand, made a brave showing when waved in circles through the air.

The brass band played strenuously and none too smoothly from the bandstand in the square downtown. "Pop" Gordon directed the boys through "The Glow Worm", "Skater's Waltz", "Ciribiribin" and other "popular" pieces. Young blades promenaded the girls along Main street, wore peg-top pants, straw hats with a string, and "23 Skidoo" buttons in lapels. The girls screamed and clung to their escorts arms when a firecracker exploded suddenly behind them, tossed by a small boy "searching" along on his bike.

The fireworks were beautiful. First would come the dull "ploop" of the explosion, the whistle of the ascending skyrocket—and the great spreading glow of lights against the dark sky. Sometimes there would be two in the sky at once and then the crowd would breathe "Oh!" and "Ah!" in appreciation.

At home again—it was very late for children to be up—the men would bring out their "surprise"—a few skyrockets, flares and bombs which they set off amateurishly in the front yard. And then it was time for the kids to go to bed, exhausted, burned and happy. Fourth of July had come to its glorious end.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—White House intimates say they have never seen the President so resolute on any issue as on the question of holding the price line. One of his intimate advisers remarked: "The President really had his Dutch up when he fired Chester Davis."

Usually Roosevelt would rather find a compromise than to offend people. Sometimes he goes to extreme lengths to find a new place for a man who doesn't fit. But when it came to a choice of letting prices rise or offending Chester Davis, he took the latter course with a vengeance.

His letter to Davis will go down in the Roosevelt records as one of the sharpest letters he ever penned. Though it opened with the usual first-naming ("Dear Chester"), it told Davis to get out immediately, instead of waiting to announce his new program for 1944. It also charged that Davis was unwilling to "support a program to hold down the cost of living".

—HOEING HIS OWN ROW—

Davis was brought to Washington because of his farm support, but inside fact is that trouble began as soon as Roosevelt found Davis was using that support for his own food program rather than the President's.

Davis has always been close to Republican farm leader Earle Smith and conservative Ed O'Neal of the Farm Bureau. But when he began to play the Smith-O'Neal game on Capitol Hill—opposing subsidies and the roll back of prices—the President thought it was time to get rid of opposition within the official family.

The question of how much authority Davis had or didn't have is incidental. He might have had more if he had played ball and tried to hold the line in the first place. But as it became apparent that Chester was not a holder-of-the-line, he was more and more frequently overruled by Jimmy Byrnes.

So Davis raised the cry of divided authority.

Final split came over the question of subsidies, which the President believes is being used as a red herring by food processors, who found in Davis a convenient mouth-piece. One reason for their opposition is the fact that subsidies and the roll-back of prices would require government inspection of their books and records.

—FDR'S COME-BACK—

The New Deal has lost much of its old fervor. Domestic issues have given way to war issues. But now Roosevelt is coming back, like a prodigal son, to the liberal struggles which made him famous.

He is determined to keep prices down for the housewife and the average consumer. The Republicans are already preparing to make food shortages a campaign issue next year, and Roosevelt is selecting his own weapons for the duel.

Note: When Davis came to Washington for the War Food job, he gave indication he thought it would be a temporary job which he might quit at any time. Instead of taking a modest government salary, he preferred to keep his handsome salary as Federal Reserve Bank President in St. Louis. He now returns to that job.

—OBSTRUCTING JUSTICE—

Even Supreme Court Justices have their troubles in that vast and teeming headquarters of the War Department—the Pentagon Building. Recently Justice Felix Frankfurter called to see Secretary of War Stimson, but was asked by a pretty receptionist if he had any "identification."

"I have an appointment with Secretary of War Stimson," replied Frankfurter. "What's your address?" inquired the receptionist.

"The Supreme Court of the United States," said Frankfurter. "I am late for an appointment with Mr. Stimson. Would you please call his office immediately and get this thing straightened out."

A phone call developed that Stimson was waiting at that very minute to confer with Frankfurter.

"Oh, there's one more thing, Mr. Frankfurter," said the receptionist. "Every visitor in the building must wear a badge."

She held out a badge and a pink slip of paper, which Stimson was supposed to sign in order to let Frankfurter out of the building after his conference. The Supreme Court Justice took both and hurried off. After he was gone, the receptionist hastily referred to a Congressional Directory.

"Hmmm, well, it just goes to show you," she remarked to the next visitor. "That man was born in Austria. You can't be too careful these days."

—ANTI-STRIKE FURY—

The President's veto message of the anti-strike bill arrived on Capitol Hill at 3:05 p. m., and here is one conversation which took place at 3:06 between two loyal Roosevelt leaders who had had no inkling that the message was coming.

House Leader John McCormack of Massachusetts, conferring with Democratic Whip Ramspeck of Georgia, said he would vote to sustain the veto, even though he, McCormack, originally had voted for the anti-strike bill.

But Ramspeck demurred. "I can't do it, John," he said. "I supported the bill in the first place because I was assured that the President was for it. I don't like to desert the President, but after all, it looks like he hasn't been faithful to us."

Burning with fury over the White House shift, McCormack replied: "Well, I can't desert the ship, Bob, but I can't object if you do."

Note: Speaker Sam Rayburn, who had been informed by Justice Byrnes that the President was for the anti-strike bill, was so furious that he put the bill to an immediate vote, knowing full well the President would be defeated.

Mussolini joined the war to share whatever Hitler got out of it. Two people hanging from the same rope would be a novelty.

SPUD OUTLOOK HERE IS 'FAIR'

No Reports Of Blight So Far; Will Inspect Crop Next Week

The potato outlook for Delta county so far this year is "fair" it was reported yesterday by E. A. Wenner, county agricultural agent, who said that an inspection of potato crops in the county will be made next week. So far there have been no reports of blight affecting county spud fields.

D. L. Clananhan, Marquette, extension specialist in farm crops for Michigan State College, is now making a tour of the Upper Peninsula to determine if the blight has spread from Northern Wisconsin. The potato crop this year is highly important and every effort is being made to protect it.

Potato growers generally in the Upper Peninsula got off to a fair start and a crop of about one-fourth larger than last year is in prospect, Clananhan has reported.

In order to keep plants in a healthy condition spraying every week or ten days has been recommended. Spraying or dusting increases the yield by as much as 40 bushels per acre.

The standard Bordeaux mixture is recommended. It contains eight pounds of copper sulphate, 12 pounds hydrated spray lime, and 100 gallons of water. A dust made of 20 pounds of monohydrated copper sulphate and 80 pounds of lime may be used as a second choice. A small amount of bug poison may be added to the spray or dusting mix.

Delta county last year produced 178,320 bushels of potatoes and is aiming at a 105 per cent goal for this year. It has been pointed out that if this goal is met, the increase would be enough to provide 1,783 soldiers with a year's ration of this staple food. The average soldier eats about five bushels of potatoes a year.

Parole Violator Is Caught Here

Clarence Hansen, 21, of Baraga, who escaped from the Baraga county jail at L'Anse four days ago, was apprehended at 5:40 a. m. yesterday by Escanaba police at Ludington and 23rd streets.

Hansen was turned over to state police of the Gladstone detachment for return to Baraga county authorities. Police said that he had been paroled from Marquette prison and had been jailed at L'Anse for parole violation when he was arrested for stealing a car.

QUIET HOLIDAY WEEK-END HERE

No Public Celebration Scheduled; Observe Monday Closing

No celebration or other public observance of the Fourth of July is scheduled for Escanaba, and the week-end in prospect is one of quiet recreation for most residents of the city.

Shops and business houses in the city as well as all public offices, will be closed on Monday. Exception will be the office of the Delta county draft board. The Escanaba post office will be open Monday only for special delivery service and dispatching of outgoing mail. There will be no mail or window service.

Police Chief Michael Ettenhofer

and Sheriff William Miron joined in warning motorists to drive slowly and cautiously on highways over the week-end. While traffic has decreased in comparison with past years, traffic volume over the holiday period is expected to be high.

The hazards of firecrackers, swimming and sunbathing were pointed out by Dr. M. A. Elstein, Delta county health director. Per-who receive burns from carelessly handled firecrackers were warned to have a physician treat the wounds since serious infections, such as tetanus, may develop.

Thousands of persons will leave the city for week-end stays at cottages and along the shore. Swimmers were cautioned to use care in the water, and children to avoid deep water or hazardous locations. Over-long exposure to the direct rays of the sun should be avoided. Painful and sometimes dangerous burns may result.

Mrs. E. Merle Crandall and daughter, Barbara Jean, of Howell are spending a week as guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Vogel, 423 South 14th street.

Although the date of their 60th wedding anniversary was June 30, Mr. and Mrs. Christian Olsen, 314 North Twelfth street, joined with relatives and friends in celebrating the event yesterday.

It was on June 30, 1883, that Mr. and Mrs. Olsen were married here by the Rev. E. W. Garner, at that time pastor of the local Presbyterian church.

One of their proud possessions is a copy of their marriage certificate, which is framed and hangs on the wall. The certificate in addition to containing the names and pictures of the married couple also lists the names of witnesses, county clerk and the minister who performed the ceremony.

It was in 1882 that Mr. Olsen came to this country from Norway, making the trip aboard the English steamer, State of Pennsylvania in the remarkable time of three days and three nights from Glasgow, Scotland to New York. An additional day and night was required for the journey from Norway to Escanaba.

Hearing tales of the good wages that were paid in this country, he was lured partially by the prospect of big money and partly by the fact that he had a sister residing in Escanaba at the time, Mr. Olsen said yesterday.

He came directly to Escanaba upon arriving in the United States, but was soon disillusioned in regard to the fabulous wealth which could be accumulated when he started work at the rate of 15 cents an hour.

He resided at the Sorenson residence, a boarding house that was located, where the Fair Store now stands. Within a year his bride to be joined him, arriving here in 1883 from Norway.

Four sons and one daughter were born to the couple. They are Oscar, Wally, Albert and Harold and Mrs. L. J. Els, all of Escanaba. They have also five grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Although Mr. Olsen is 85 years old and his wife is 84, both are enjoying good health and took an active part in joining with relatives and friends in observing their anniversary yesterday.

Alice Louise Ingersoll, assistant field director of the American Red Cross at Fort Brady, expressed appreciation in a recent letter to Mrs. E. J. MacMartin, production chairman here, for the shipment of articles to the Fort Brady hospital.

The letter reads, in part: "The carton containing 150 pairs of bedroom slippers made by your production group arrived yesterday. We wish to compliment the group on their construction. They have been turned in to the wards and the nurses and medical officers commented that they were extremely useful and will be of a great benefit for the patients. Perforated soles and elastic over the instep is a great improvement. Also, with the heels, the slipper offers much more protection to the patient's foot."

"Delta County Chapter is doing a splendid job and we wish to voice the appreciation of everything they are doing for the patients at the station hospital."

Featured in the society section of Thursday's Detroit Free Press was an account of the annual garden fete given by the Colony Town Club in which Mrs. Roger V. Walker, club president took an active part. Mrs. Walker is the former Helen Reade of Escanaba.

In addition to the account of the Free Press carried a three column picture showing Mrs. Walker reviewing the afternoon's activities with Mrs. George F. Goodson, general chairman.

The garden party consisted of a bazaar for the benefit of the club's wartime activities, piano recitals, a fashion show and a program by the Navy band.

Dedicate Church At Harris Monday

The Polish National church at Harris, 14 miles west of Escanaba, on Highway 41, will be dedicated at 10 a. m. Monday, July 5, by the Rt. Rev. Leo Grochowski, bishop of the western diocese of the Polish National Catholic church of America.

The edifice at Harris is the first Polish National church in Upper Michigan. There are 160 churches of this denomination in America, with a total membership of 150,000. The parish at Harris was organized three years ago. Until the church was built, services were held in the Episcopal church at Wilson, five miles from Harris.

For Restraint In Victory

According to Thy promise, O Eternal Ruler of all things, Thou hast given victories to our arms; and we thank Thee. Still lead us on, we pray; and continue to bless the forces that fight in Thy name for goals that are set by Thy revealed will. Keep deep in our consciousness that our help has been from the Lord. Restrain us from undue exaltation and from all excesses. May our men be merciful and chivalrous in victory, showing forth the mercy of our Master. So in our triumphs shall we win our own souls, and assure a new world of brotherhood.

"Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." Amen.—W.T.E.

Garbage to be Made

Complaints that garbage is being wrapped in paper and placed in the alleys, contrary to an order of Dr. Jas. Mitchell, city health officer, are being received at the city hall.

In almost all instances dogs tear the packages apart and flies get at the food, causing a distinct health menace. Even children have been known to delve into the scraps.

Garbage must be placed in covered containers and emptied periodically or it must be buried deeply so as to cause no health hazard.

Violations of the order in the future will be dealt with in accordance with the law.

PUT WATER IN
NEW SOO LOCKOfficial Opening To Be Held On Sunday,
July 11

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.—Sault's new lock was filled with water last night and today, with typical U. S. Army Engineers' meticulousness, every part of the giant chamber for ocean and lake freighters was being tested.

"Everything is working fine," said Lt. Col. Milton Chamberlain, sub-district engineer in charge here.

Tests will be conducted this week and next in preparation for the final acceptance of the lock by the U. S. government from the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company.

The lock is 800 feet long, 80 feet wide, and 30 feet deep, published records show. How much water it holds remains a military secret. Col. Chamberlain said laughingly when asked about the capacity. "It's a lot of water," he volunteered.

Meanwhile the Great Lakes company is going ahead with its pier project above the locks, another government contract which is expected to take up most of the summer.

Tonight at the Country club a celebration party of Great Lakes company men is to be held to mark the conclusion of the lock project, a record-breaking feat started a year ago in March and carried through 30-below zero weather and other hazards.

Whether L. C. Sabin, president of Great Lakes Co. would be here tomorrow was not certain. Mr. Cabin was at one time superintendent of the locks here and the fourth lock is popularly known as the Sabin lock. It is expected that the new lock will be known as the MacArthur lock.

On July 11 the official opening of the new lock will take place with due ceremony.

Governor Coming

Among the distinguished persons expected will be Gov. Harry P. Kelly of Michigan.

Brig. Gen. David McCoach, assistant to the chief of engineers, who in 1930 was Detroit district engineer and was then Major McCoach; L. C. Sabin, president of the company that built the lock; Col. P. N. Strong, Detroit district engineer who was in the Sault during construction of the lock; and Rep. Fred Bradley, congressman from the 11th district.

Gov. Kelly, Gen. McCoach and Col. Strong are expected to arrive here aboard Col. Strong's yacht.

Plans for the formal celebration will be announced next week.

Girl Scouts Need

Medical Tests To

Girl Scouts who plan to attend Camp Timber Trail must have a doctor's examination during the week before they plan to attend camp. Mrs. Arthur Adams, camp chairman for the Manistique Girl Scout Council, emphasized yesterday.

Blanks have been left in each doctor's office and girls may report there at any time during the week for the examinations. Girls who are to attend the opening session of camp starting July 11 must get them this week.

Essentials which each girl must bring have been listed and include pillow and case, sheets and blankets, clothing for cold weather as well as warm, rubbers for rainy days and dewy mornings, a tin cup, jackknife, flashlight, sunburn lotion and mosquito netting for over the bed.

Manistique's camp quota has been filled but Mrs. Adams has been informed that there are still a few vacancies in the last two-week period from August 1 to 15, for which Manistique girls will be permitted to register.

The camping period this year will be from July 11 to August 15 with one two-week period held first, then one single week period and another two-week session. Investigation of
Dam Dynamiting
Started By Police

State police have started an investigation to determine who dynamited the Manistique Pulp and Paper company's dam, it was revealed yesterday. The dam, located near the Indian River bridge on M-94 north of Manistique, was partially blown out early Thursday morning when someone is believed to have dynamited the structure.

Strict regulations must be followed in the use of dynamite and a qualified person must handle the charge if state law is followed. As far as can be determined, no dynamite has been sold under permit for that purpose.

Under one part of the law, use of the explosives in an attempt to do damage is punishable by 15 years in jail. Another section sets a maximum prison term of 25 years for persons using explosives to cause damage to property. Persons aiding or abetting in the offense also are liable for criminal charges.

Shipment Is Made
By Red Cross

The production corps of the Schoolcraft County Red Cross Chapter last week shipped 50 kit bags for servicemen, completing its quota of 400 of them and is now laying plans to fill a quota of 400 more of the kit bags for use by the navy. Mrs. Russell Watson, production chairman, reported yesterday that purchase of the various articles needed for the bags will be arranged for during the summer months in order that work can be started early next fall on the new quota.

Included in the kit bags will be a wide variety of articles including soap and a soap box, playing cards, cigarettes, shoe polishing cloth, pencil, envelopes and paper, shoe laces, razor blades, a small book and a sewing case, which is widely known as a "housewife." Gum is not included anymore in the kit bags because it is hard to remove it from the decks of vessels and because the paper wrappers on the gum are a clue to enemy submarines if they are tossed overboard.

A shipment of 129 other articles was sent out of here to the St. Louis office of the Red Cross last week at the same time the last 80 kit bags in the first 400 quota for the local chapter went out. Included in the articles were knitted garments for the armed forces, children's garments for war use and articles for use in convalescent hospitals.

Although individual production work will continue during the summer, the Red Cross workshop in the Orr building will be closed during July and August. Mrs. Watson said. The workshop will be reopened again in the fall.

LURE BOOK PRINTED

Iron Mountain—The second wartime issue of the Upper Peninsula Lure Book is off the press and a supply will reach the Development Bureau's office in Marquette today, George E. Bishop, secretary-manager of the bureau, said yesterday.

The bureau will send copies immediately to several hundred clients who have requested them. Quantities also have been sent direct to distributing centers by the Ann Arbor Press, which printed them.

While some information contained in the 1942 edition has been deleted, at the suggestion of the Office of War Information, the 1943 Lure Book still has much vacation appeal, Bishop said, adding: "It is supported by advertising copy of resort proprietors who have taken a long range view of the present situation and have decided that we must keep the Upper Peninsula before the traveling public so that when victory comes we will once again reap a fair share of the tourist revenue."

ASKS DAMAGES
FOR DROWNINGLeo Gould Claims City
Liable In Death
Of Son

The city of Manistique has been notified that Leo J. Gould, father of seven-year-old Gerald J. Gould who was drowned in the Indian River at Riverside Park, will seek to collect damages from the city for the child's death.

City Clerk L. B. Chittenden received a letter from W. J. Sheahan, representing the father, that he had been retained to institute and collect damages from the city for the death of the child, charging that the city was negligent and did not maintain proper barriers and safeguards at Intake Park, resulting in the child's drowning on June 22.

The letter stated that no action against the city would be taken until the council has met and has had the opportunity to discuss the claim and to make an offer of settlement to cover the city's alleged liability. The city council is scheduled to have its next meeting on July 12 and the letter stated that if no move is made by July 13 to negotiate for an amicable settlement, Gould will feel free to institute suit against the city without further notice.

City Manager Charles B. Norton, when contacted yesterday, said that the letter has been turned over to City Attorney James C. Wood. Mr. Wood will make a study of the matter and give the city council his opinion in the case.

Gerald Gould, one of 13 children of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gould, was drowned while crossing the dam at Intake Park on June 22 when he slipped from the footbridge crossing the river at the city dam.

United War Fund Unit Formation
To Be Discussed Here Wednesday

A Schoolcraft county unit of the United War Fund, Inc., may be organized here as a part of an Upper Peninsula campaign for the formation of the group. A meeting to discuss the possible organization will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the county courthouse and will be attended by civic leaders.

The United War Fund was started recently under approval from the government's War Relief Control board. The fund is serving as a central collection agency for all of the various war relief agencies including the British War Relief, Inc., United China Relief, Queen Wilhelmina Fund, Greek War Relief, Polish-American War Relief, Russian War Relief and the USO.

One annual drive to finance the work of the various agencies will be raised at one time following the plan of the community chest. The various units which are members of the United War Fund, Inc., still will retain their individual identities but funds for them will be allocated through the United War Fund. The American Red Cross is not participating in the United War Fund and will still hold its own annual drive for funds.

Funds raised through the United War Fund and disbursed through its various affiliated agencies will be used on the military front to render various services to servicemen who would not be furnished otherwise, to help evacuees and to bring aid and comfort to citizens of allied nations who have suffered at the hands of Nazi and Japanese forces, and to aid civilian morale on the home front and carry out other essential uses in the war effort.

Mrs. Florence Langerhausen of Detroit, field representative of the Michigan United War Fund, is making arrangements for the organization meeting Wednesday evening. She will address the meeting, explaining the scope and purposes of the fund and outlining the procedure for establishing a unit in Schoolcraft county.

Schoolcraft county is the first Upper Peninsula county where formation of a unit of the United War Fund has been started. Mrs. Langerhausen will make her headquarters at Blaney Park while working in the Upper Peninsula.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

THREE SPEEDY SWEDS

When Gunder Haegg was breaking running records in Sweden right and left last summer, Arne Andersson gained recognition mainly as Haegg's "shadow." Everywhere that Gunder went, Arne was sure to go. Haegg always won, with Andersson close behind. The keen competition that Andersson provided crowded Haegg to the limit of his capabilities and, as a result, new records were established in a number of distances. It was Haegg and not Andersson, however, who received the plaudits of the crowd and world wide recognition.

Then Haegg came to America to match strides with Greg Rice and Gil Dodds and other top ranking American runners. The Swedish star has made two starts in the country, winning both handily and consequently adding to his reputation. Apparently being freed from the competition of Gunder Haegg also was just what the doctor ordered for Andersson because Andersson establishing a new world's record in the mile Thursday at Gotesburg, Sweden, stepping the distance in 4:02.6, the closest any man has yet come to the four-minute dream mile.

It now comes to light that Sweden has not only one super-runner-Haegg, nor even two, including Andersson, but at least three and possibly even more. When Andersson turned in the 4:02.6 mile Thursday, close on his heels was Rune Gustavson, a runner without any reputation in this country. Gustavson's time for the mile was 4:04.6, equalling Haegg's record.

Glenn Cunningham is the only American runner, or the only runner in the world, for that matter, to have turned in a faster mile than that, prior to Andersson's remarkable performance. Cunningham has an unrecognized performance of 4:04.4, made indoors on a six lap track.

When Haegg was told that his mile record had been bettered by a countryman and he was asked to guess who had accomplished it, he didn't name Andersson but suggested a fellow named Spaanert, then another named Alsen. Those fellows must be pretty good, too.

Having already defeated Greg Rice and Gil Dodds in his two American appearances, Haegg seems a cinch to romp through the remainder of his American tour without serious opposition. It probably won't be possible to bring over some of Haegg's countrymen, Andersson, Gustavson and some of the other Swedish stars, but Americans, who are always ready to recognize and appreciate sporting talent wherever they see it, would welcome the opportunity to watch Haegg compete against Andersson and the others, with the American stars thrown in for good measure.

Detroit Overcomes Lead Of Six Runs In Last Two Innings

BY WATSON SPOELSTRA
Detroit, July 3 (AP)—In a hard-to-believe finish, the Detroit Tigers overcame a six-run lead in the last two innings of the nightcap today to defeat the New York Yankees, 10 to 9, and sweep a double-header from the once proud champions. Rudy York's 11th inning homer won the opener, 6 to 5.

In staging a finish that was strongly reminiscent of their 1940 pennant days, the Tigers staged a four-run ninth inning rally topped by Pinch-hitter Rip Radcliff's game winning single after Henry (Prince) Oano, Hawaiian pitcher, had belted a three-run homer in the eighth.

First For Oano

The spectacular double triumph did the following:

1—It extended Detroit's winning streak to five games, longest in three years.

2—It moved the Tigers back above the 500 mark just 2½ games behind the Yankees.

3—The amazing comeback in the nightcap gave Oano his first major league pitching victory.

The Tigers rallied in the first game, too, and long-jawed Johnny Murphy, Yankee bullpen specialist, was the loser in both games.

In the opener the Tigers staged a three-run eighth inning rally to send the game into extra play. York opened the Tiger half of the event by driving his ninth homer of the season into the lower left field seats. That gave Lefty Hal Newhouse, who had yielded 10 hits, his sixth victory against five defeats.

The thrilling opener was dulled by comparison with the nightcap, however. The Yankees started right off by shelling Lefty Roy Henshaw from the mound and they scored four more runs off Oano, largely through Nick Etten's two-run homer in the seventh.

Going into the last half of the eighth, the Tigers were trailing 9 to 3, and Manager Steve O'Neill in effect tossed in the sponge by sending in replacements for Pinky Higgins and Roger Cramer. But on the mound was Atley Donald, never much of a Tiger batter, and things really began to happen.

Harris Batting Star
After York had walked and Jimmy Bloodworth singled, Oano hammered his first homer into the left field lower deck. That made it 9 to 6, and Manager Joe McCarthy wasn't much worried although he summoned Murphy from the bullpen.

J. P. Wood, who had replaced Higgins, drew a pass to open the ninth. Harris beat out a single off Murphy's glove, and both runners took an extra base when Joe Gordon threw the ball past first trying to get Harris. McCarthy contended that Wood had interfered with Gordon on the play, and the game was finished under official protest.

At this stage York drew a pass to the fill the bases, and Bloodworth lined a double to left, scoring two runs and putting the tying and winning runs in position to score. Bill Zuber came in to pitch for New York, and Radcliff, batting for Dixie Parsons, promptly slapped a single to left field. Bloodworth beating the throw to the plate for the winning run.

In the opener Harris was the big batting star, driving in three runs before York's homer broke up the game.

Tomorrow the clubs play another double bill, with Virgil Trucks, presumably recovered from an arm injury, and Frank (Stub) Overmire facing Ernie Bonham and Hank Borowy of the Yankees.

Clapper Sees Full Year Of Hard Fighting Ahead

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Allied Headquarters in North Africa (by wireless)—The war as seen from this area shows still a different face from the way it looks in England and from the way it looks in Sweden.
During the last two months I have been looking at the fortress of Europe from three separate vantage points, and I must say that the job doesn't look as easy as you go around the perimeter of the enemy-held continent.
From Sweden I was most conscious of Germany's difficulties with her so-called new order in Europe. There is intense hatred of Germany in the occupied countries such as Norway—and even in Denmark, where the Nazis are on model behavior to show how good they can be toward a conquered people. What I got out of five weeks behind the German blockade in Sweden was that even if Germany had won the war she could never have made the conquered peoples accept her rule of the continent. Her new Europe, even if she had won a complete military victory, would, I believe, have been shattered in the end on the rock of the passion for freedom which the European people have.

From England, Germany appeared to be crumbling under the rain of bombs that is going out from the British Isles. Photographs showed destruction so complete that life in the heavily hit Ruhr communities was bound to be badly disorganized, interfering with war production.
England is somewhat under the spell of Air Marshall Sir Arthur T. Harris, who among all her military men is probably the most aggressive, and certainly the most colorful and emphatic champion of mass bombing. The American Eighth Air Force is thinking in the same direction. Thus when I was in England we seemed to be seeing the roof taken off Germany, with the prospect of Allied bombardment from the air during the months to come breaking the Nazis down, disor-

Old Orchard Farm

Crops Still Waiting For Warmer Weather

Old Orchard farm, the Daily Press experimental farm at Flat Rock, in common with every farm in this section, needs more sunshine and much higher average temperatures, to bring along the crops of 1943. When the mercury dropped to the 40 degree mark one night last week, over most of the section, frost damage was reported from low lands, but in higher ground while there was no actual damage those cold nights definitely set back all growing crops.

Prospects for a bumper oats and barley crop in this section have pretty well gone a glimmering. Both oats and barley are short and in all low spots the growing grain shows a sickly yellowish hue. Old Orchard no longer depends on barley for a grain crop, raising mature corn instead, but the experimental farm's oats crop doesn't look any too promising. In spots the short oats, for some unaccountable reason, are heading out, indicating a very short crop of that grain.

Corn 18 Inches High

While Old Orchard's corn will now average about 18 inches in height, or better, it is not of a good color, due to lack of sunshine and cold nights. Both fields were given their third cultivation of the season last week, but cultivation, alone, will not make the crop and more favorable weather conditions are desperately needed, if Old Orchard's livestock is going to eat grain next winter.

Old Orchard has a fine stand of potatoes but the farm crew ran into trouble in giving the field its first spraying last week. The shut off valve on the four row sprayer, suddenly went to pieces and there were no repair parts in Escanaba to remedy the damage. Old Orchard's field had been about half covered when the sprayer went out of commission and in the emergency operations had to be stopped until temporary and make-shift repairs could be made. The defective sprayer part was ordered by wire from the factory and Old Orchard's manager hopes to have the outfit in running shape again, for the next spraying.

While many farmers in the county have started haying operations, Old Orchard has been deneau, Detroit, and Mrs. Maurice Hauser, Milwaukee.

OLIVER HEDSTEN

The funeral of Oliver Hedsten was held at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the Anderson funeral home, Rev. Karl Hammar, pastor of the Central Methodist church, officiating. Burial was made in Lakeview cemetery.

Two solos were sung by C. Arthur Anderson. Beyond the Sunset and Wonderful Peace. Mrs. Leonard Nelson was the accompanist.

Burial was made in Lakeview cemetery.

Morale Of Norwegians Is Lifted By Valor Of Underground Press

By BARBARA E. SCOTT FISHER
Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

New York — Norway's underground press thrives. Numbering at least 12 publications, "it has become so efficient that radio news received from Britain at 7:30 in the evening makes headlines in these secret newspapers the following morning," declared Else Margrethe Roed, Norwegian author, journalist, and working member of the underground press, here yesterday.

Two of the major factors which keep up the spirits of the Norwegians—and according to Miss Roed they are "very optimistic"—are the capable work of the underground press and the stupidity of the Quislings.

Miss Roed, who was editor of a popular woman's magazine, continued to carry on during the Quisling regime until she felt she was no longer safe from the Gestapo. She then made her way, largely on foot, through the mountains across Norway's invisible border into Sweden—one of the first women to escape from occupied Norway, arriving here by British convoy on New Year's Eve. She left Norway in the late fall.

Giving a vivid picture of life under the Nazis, she told of the methodical distribution of Norway's mimeographed underground papers. About 10,000 are distributed, and each person concerned is counted upon to circulate at least 20.

"The Nazis try hard to make friends, but they are so stupid," she continued. "They place a Quisling in the King's Castle, paint Nazi flags on all our public buildings, forbid the mention of even red, blue or white—our national colors—in our periodicals. We cannot even wear the little red caps which Norwegians have made part of their favorite skiing costume."

Sweater emblems will be awarded the winners in eight age classes.

When the Germans decided to move into a house, they would come in, look it over and say, "I give you two days. Then you must be out. Take your clothes—leave everything else as it is. I like it—so," she related. When they took half a house, they would keep it so hot it was unbearable. The other half would have no heat at all, and hot water once a week. "The day we had hot water," Miss Roed added with a smile, "we would invite all our friends in to take a bath."

"We never speak of the underground," Miss Roed explained. "Very few people in underground last more than six months. One of the most wonderful things is the way the women encourage the men to carry on. When a man tells his wife he is joining, she asks no questions. It is better for her to know nothing. But in every way she offers encouragement for him to go."

Food is very scarce, according to this journalist. Norwegians still send out their fleets of fishing boats, but all the fish goes to the Germans. Fishermen must get a certificate to operate, and can go only a prescribed distance. Their catch must be sold at a price fixed by the Germans—a normal price—but only to Germans. A small fisherman might be able to save some of his catch for his family, but the large concerns—never.

"The chief diet of the people, when they can get it, is dried fish, herring, flour, and turnips," said Miss Roed, "and the women take pride in making what they have attractive. They use their fine china and best linens no matter how poor the fare."

"When you wake up in the morning your first thought is, 'What can we get to eat today?' The women line up in long cues from 7 in the morning—sometimes you get something, sometimes—nothing. If you are fortunate, you share what you have with the others, no matter how little. To drink, we have coffee made of acorns. Tea is made from various dried leaves, such as strawberry leaves. If we have carrots, we save the green tops—dry them—and use for soup.

"In Oslo the Nazis have taken over all the schools for barracks. But children go to informal schools held in our dining rooms in groups of six to 10."

"Clothing is very difficult to get. Sometimes you can get an order for more, but no more are to be had in the shops. Shoes are the worst problem. People wear what ever they can get. They never fit. Most people are reduced to wooden shoes."
